

Plas St Pol de Leon Square, Penarth Marina

The works involved the refurbishment of an existing square within a business and residential area of Penarth Marina. Having won the contract through competitive tender, the works commenced in February 2004. The square had operational business' on one side with residential dwellings to the other and so public access to these buildings was maintained for the duration of the contract.

The works began with the demolition and removal of brick built raised planters and seats which were removed off site and the lifting of existing block and slab paving which was stored within the confines of the site for re-use.

Electrical ducting was laid and bollard lamps were installed.

Block paving was laid to form the central path and feature circle and to edge the slab paved areas. The reclaimed paving slabs were then used to form the side paths.

A large, pennant stone feature rock was installed in the centre of the paved circle and gravel was spread at the base.

Hardwood pergolas and bollards, which differed in height, were installed.

Topsoil was imported and placed into shrub beds which were then planted with maritime tolerant species.

Upon completion of this project the client asked us to maintain all of the landscaped areas managed by Portway (Penarth) Management Limited around the marina. We have also since renewed and upgraded many of the landscape areas around the marina on a design and build basis.
